

LEPO

"If somebody were to make good sofas, then it would be easy to sell them..."

"Then I will start to make them, if you will sell them."

Lepo's founder Aake Anttila answers his brother-in-law Pentti Roitto in the 50's.

"In 1953 Lahden Lepokalusto began to manufacture sofa beds and arm chairs with the patented Epeda-method. The collection soon included other furniture."

Holmberg K. (2013): LEPO 60 years in furniture.

A woman with blonde hair tied back, wearing a black t-shirt, is working in a workshop. She is using a hammer to assemble wooden chair legs. The workshop is filled with various wooden components and tools. In the foreground, several completed wooden chair legs are visible, showing a light-colored wood grain. The background shows a window and a storage cabinet with many small drawers.

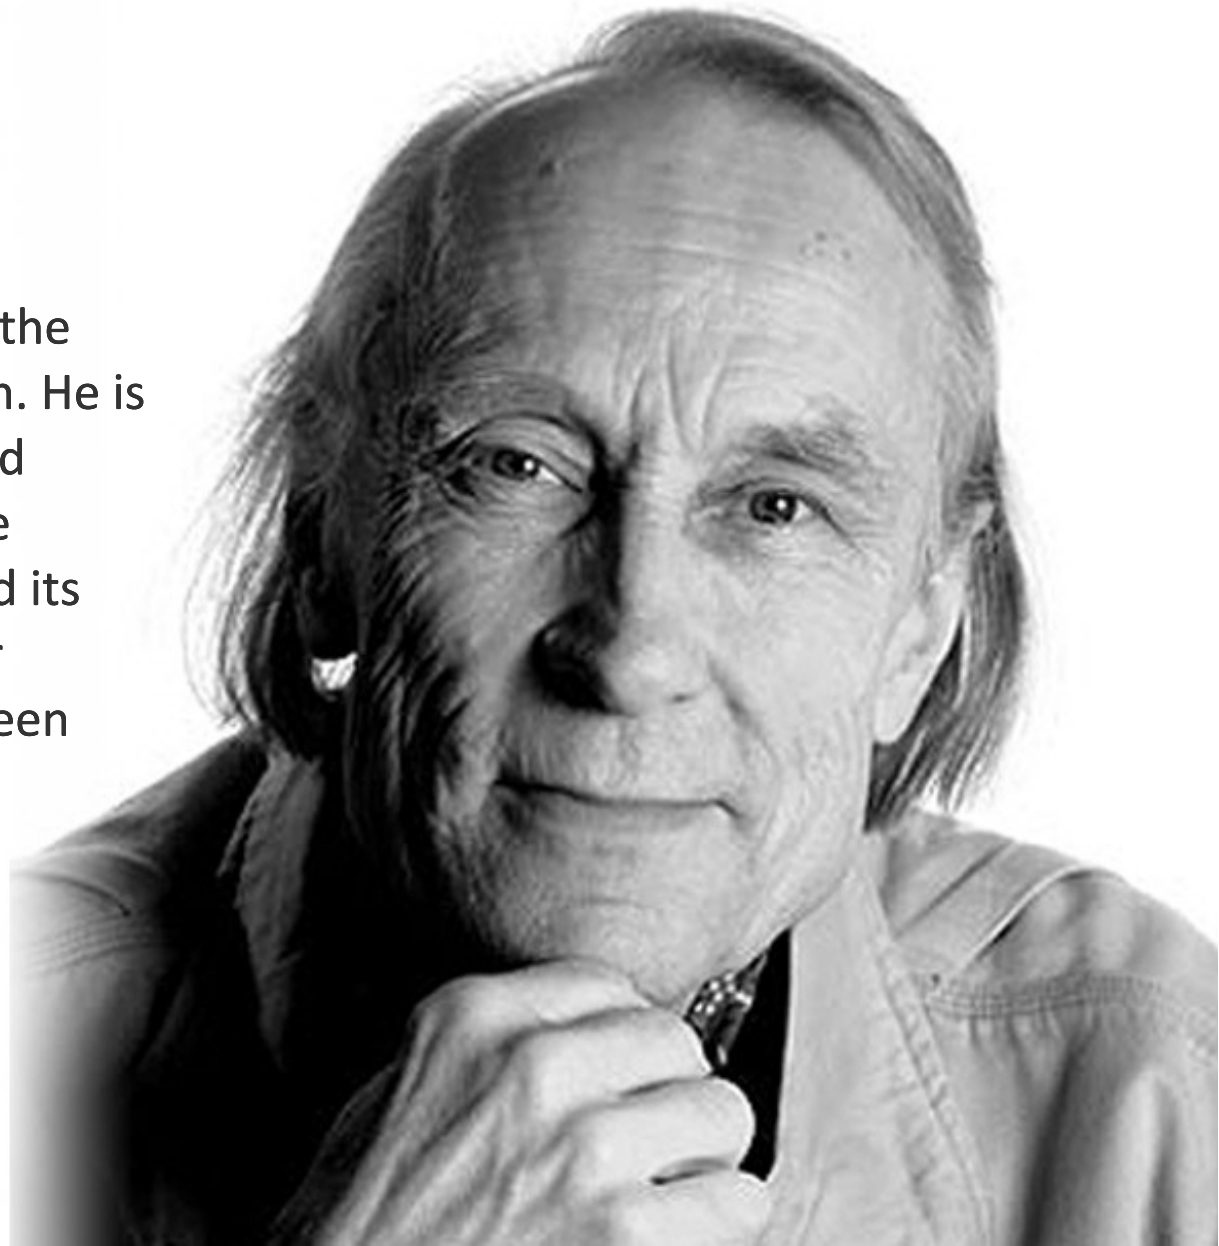

"Our own production which is located in Lahti's Villähde enables flexible and fast deliveries. Throughout the company's history our collection has been based on ergonomic and well designed seating."

Kimmo Köntti, Managing director LEPO PRODUCT OY

"We want to retain the product design and manufacturing in Finland in the future."

Pekka Köntti, The chairman of the board.

Professori Yrjö Kukkapuro is one of the pivotal modernists of Finnish design. He is known for his mastering of form and carefully considered details that are typical to him. The human body and its proportions have been his focus for throughout the decades. Lepo has been manufacturing Kukkapuro's first hit collection Moderno for 65 years.

Moderno at Manhattan.
Aamulehti 4.11.1968:

"An old man from a metropole and a new chair from tiny Finland. Lepokalustus's Moderno chair has found its way across the Atlantic, to the world bank in Washington, Sheraton hotel Puerto Polo, Moscow's Ukraine hotel as well as other public spaces. The peaceful constructiveness and boldness make Moderno chair ideal for spaces which require lightness with a hint of aristocracy."
